

A Bad Winter For Flara

By: Kamalani
Dung

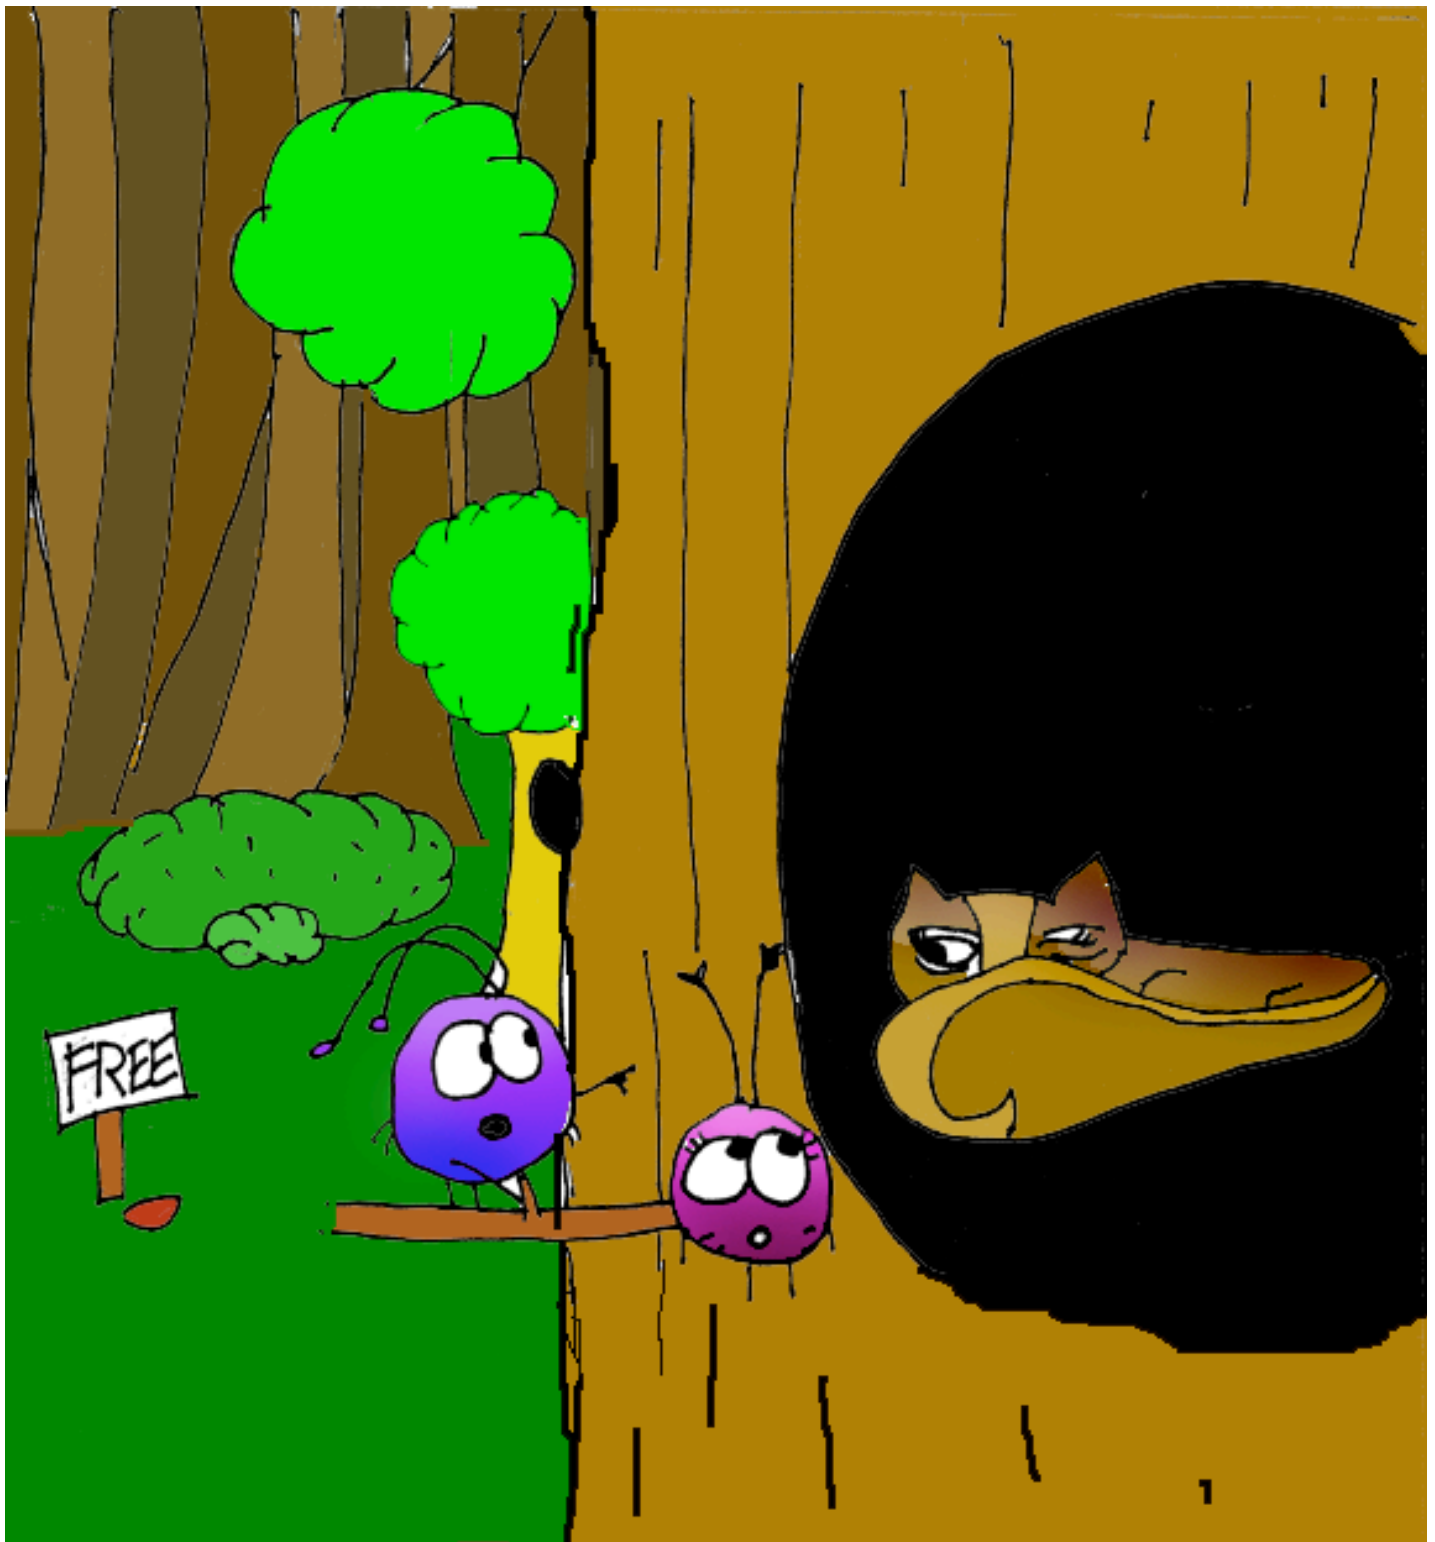

One day there was a lazy squirrel named Flara. Who always wanted other animals to do things for her..
“get me some food”

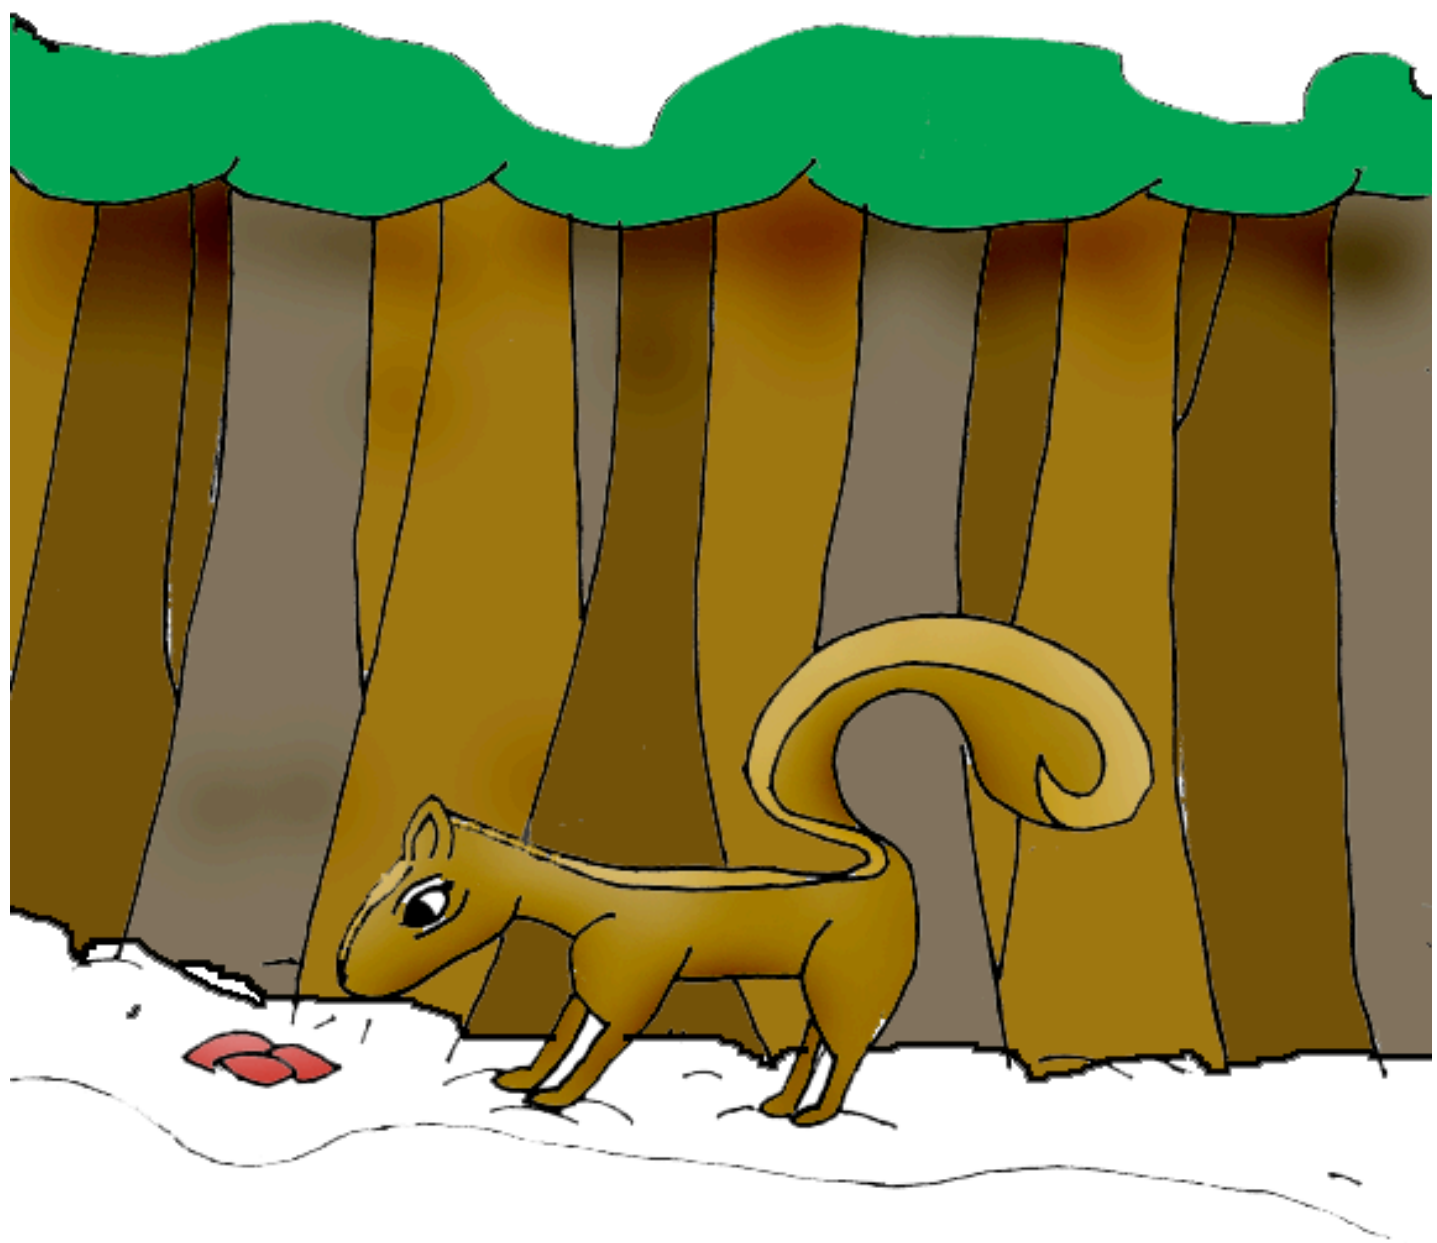

That Winter while the other animals were looking for food to eat for the long winter time coming, Flara was sleeping

Sazu and Sissy told Flara to start looking for food to survive the winter. But Flara said, "I can do it later."

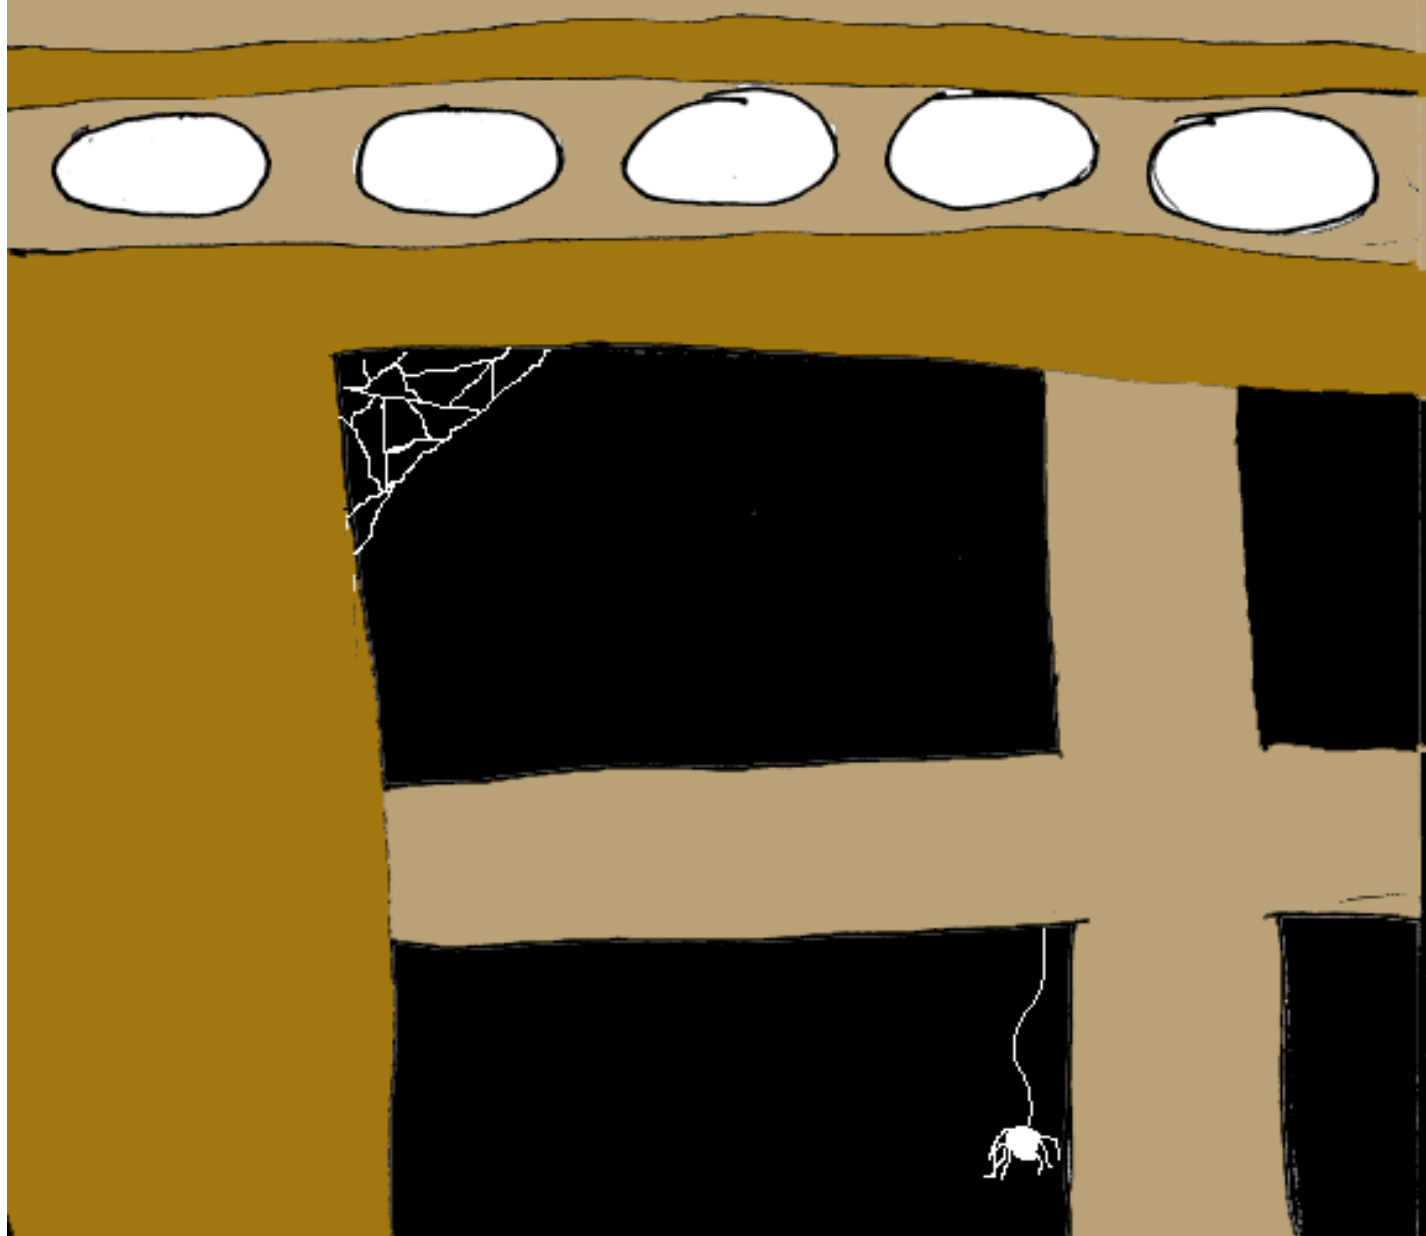

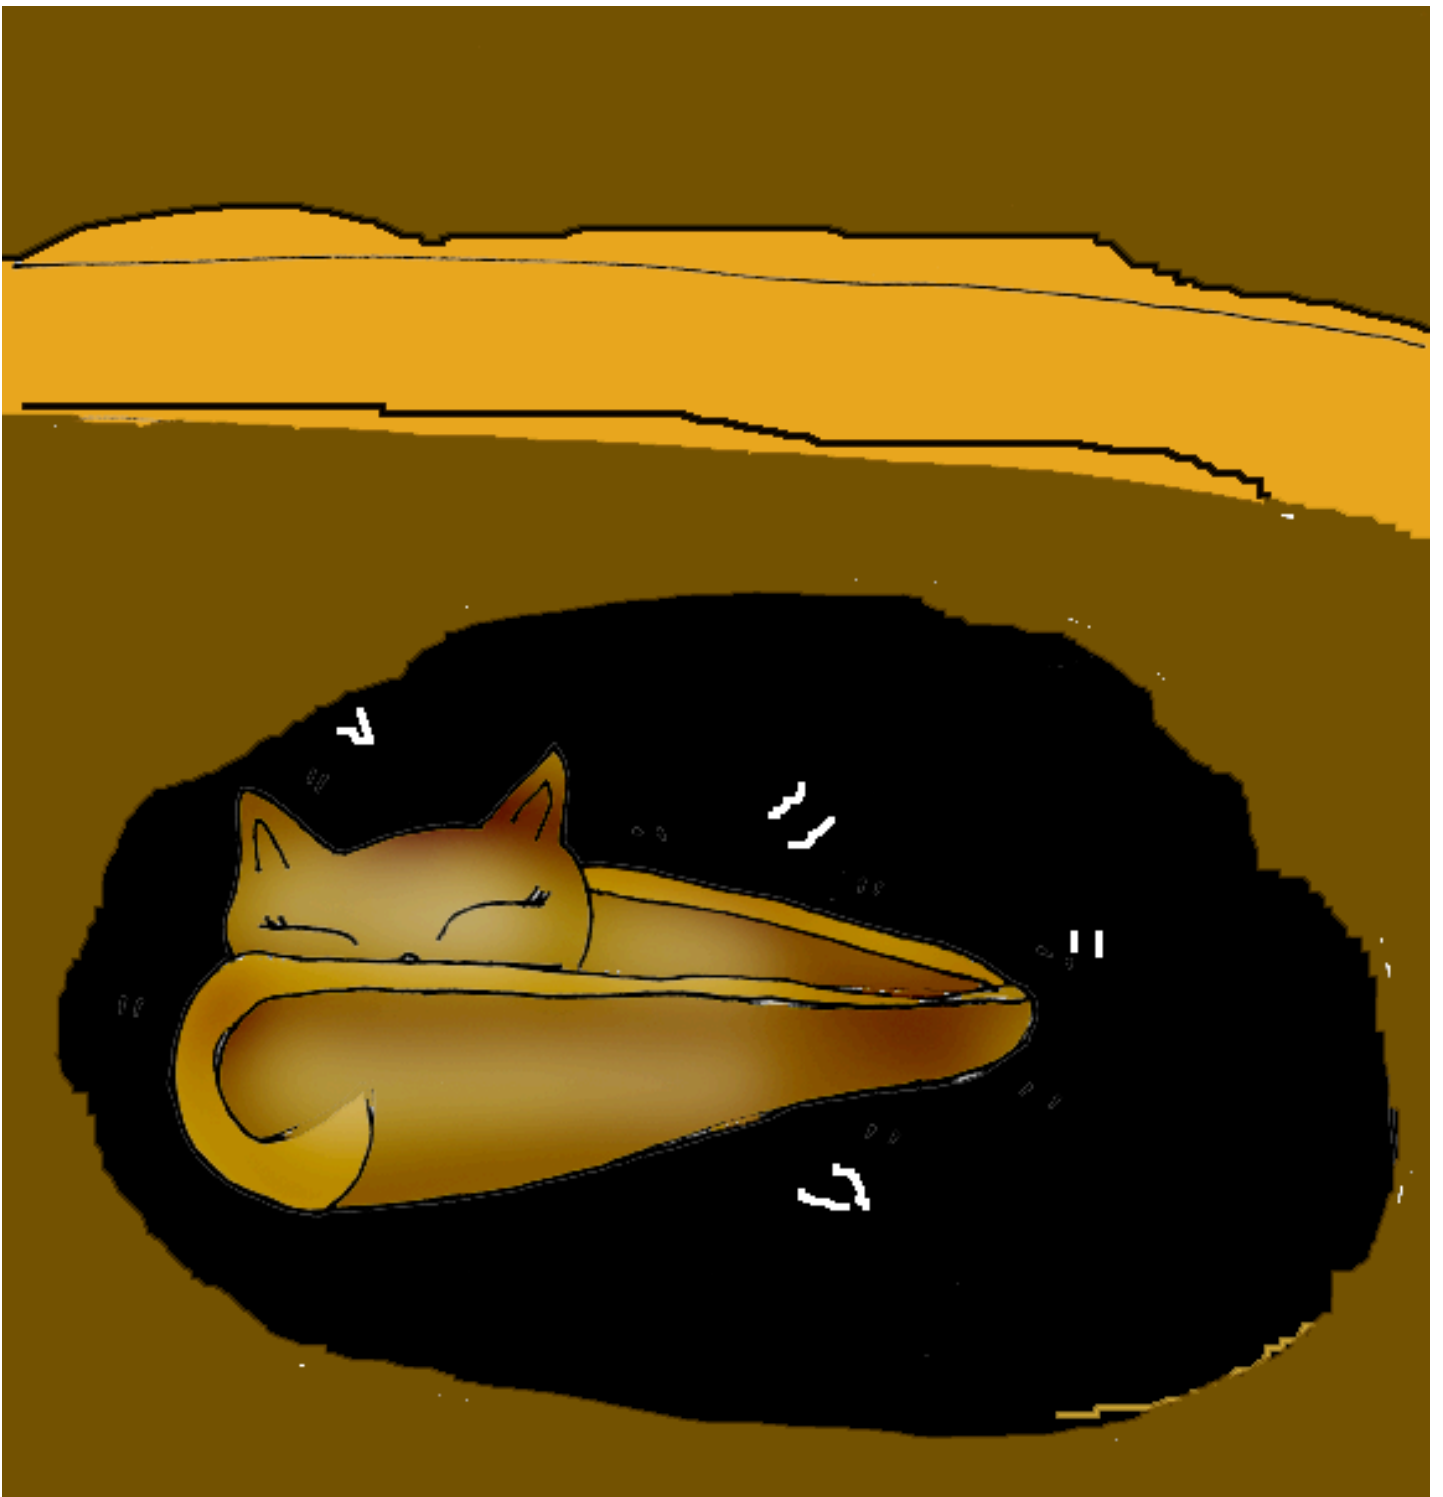

When Flara woke up again it was the next day and there was snow everywhere.

When Flara tried to look for food she only could find 3 berries.

When Flara tried to look for a place to sleep, all she could find was an old broken down house.

When Flara was about to freeze and die of hunger, Sissy and Sazu came and took her with them for the winter.

The moral to this story is don't put of until tomarrow,
