In oceans around the world, there is an animal called an Oarfish and his cousin that is an Opah. When they were bright eggs, their parents let them go. Their names are Oscar and Oliver.

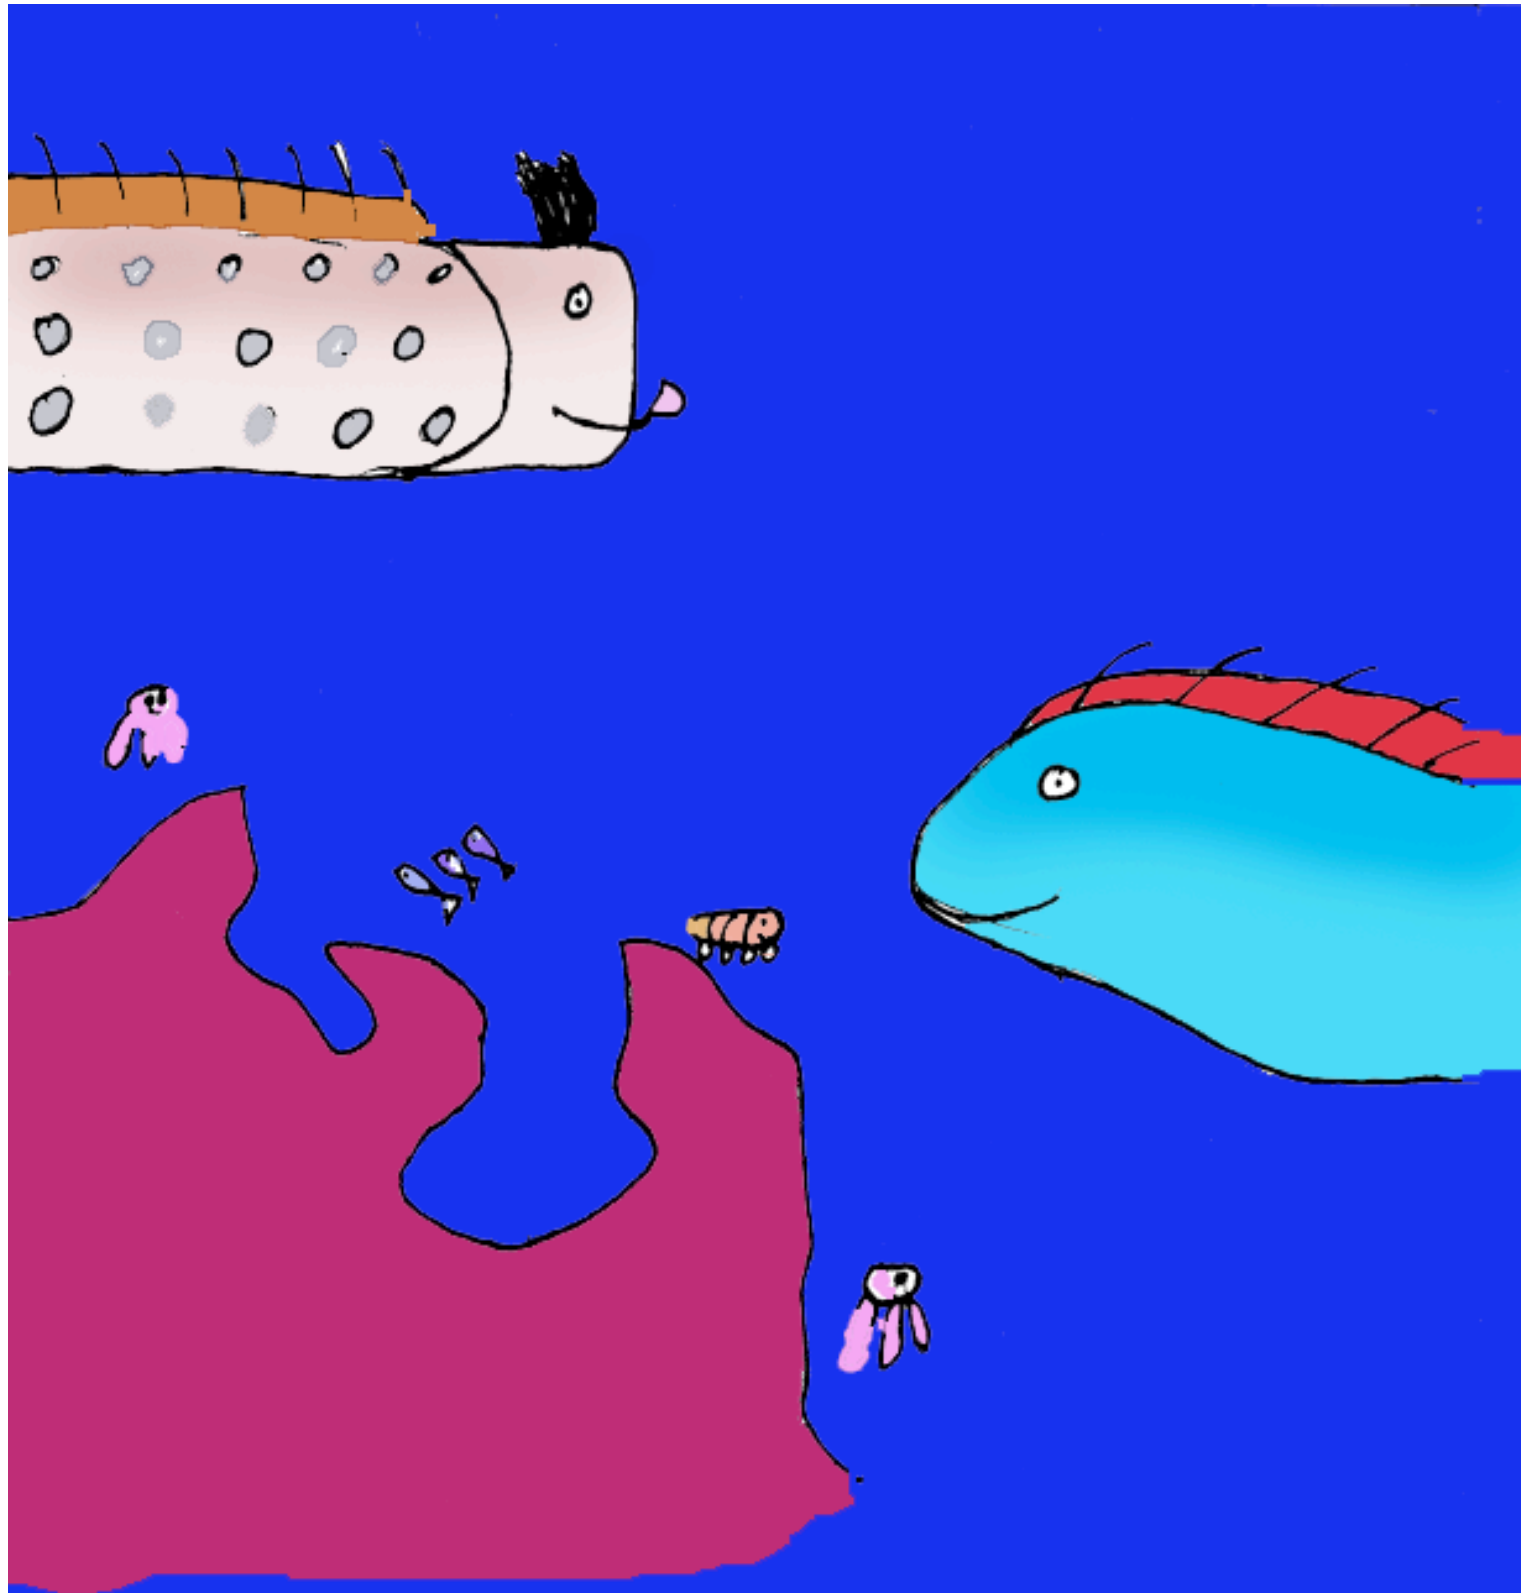

Oscar and Oliver needed to find food. They were looking in a very empty area, where there were only the bigger fish and they refused to hunt.

Then they looked in a sandy area and started asking people but still couldn't find any food. The two fish started getting really hungry.

Finally Oliver and Oscar checked the reef and found food. The two ate a lot realized how important friendship and teamwork is and to never give up.
