Adventure

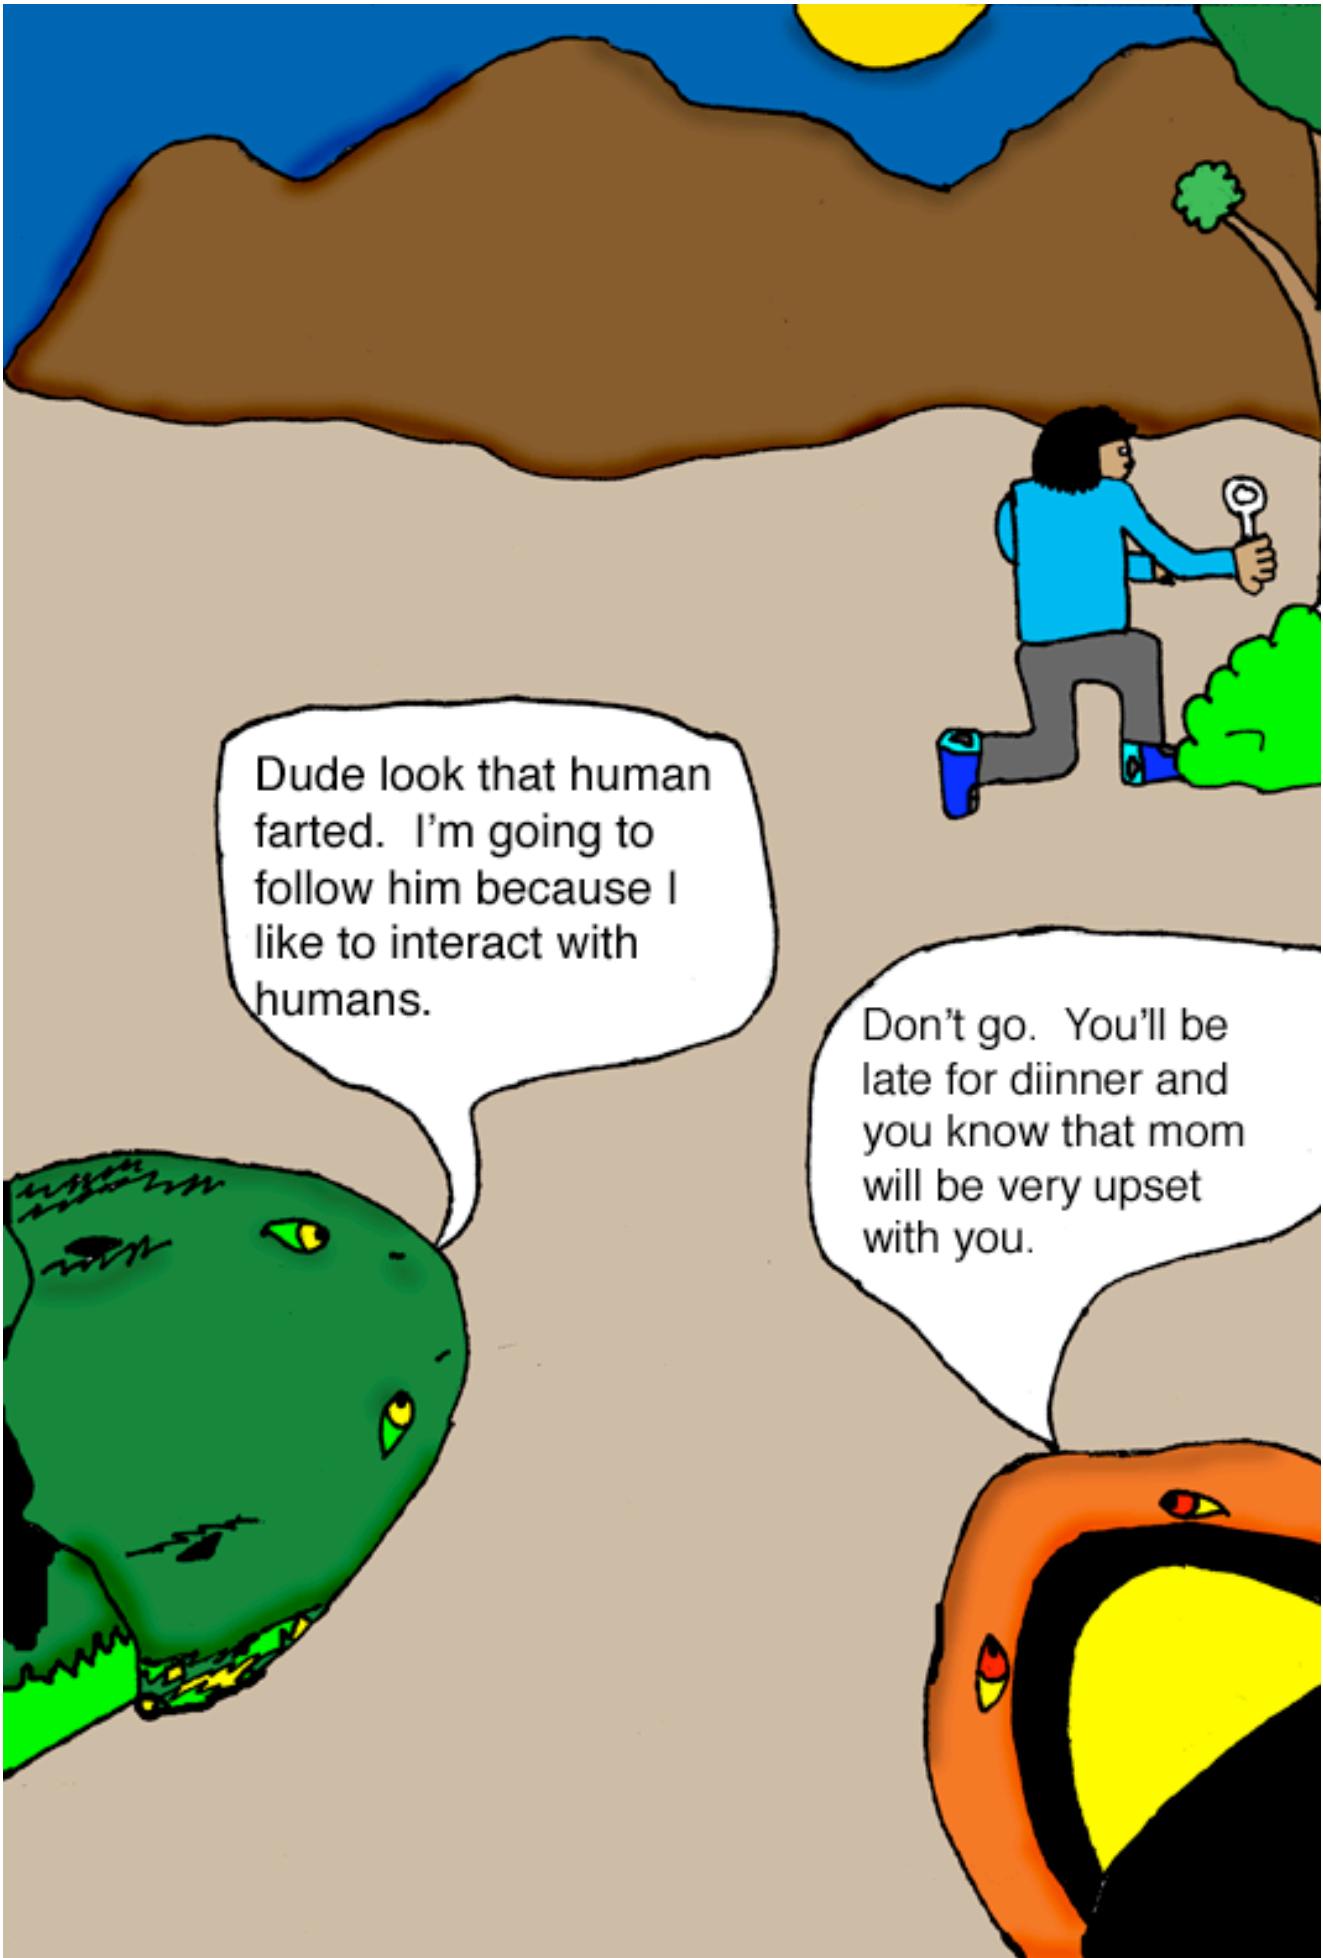

To the Zoo

By: Brandon Rodrigues

Today at this very moment Michael the bearded dragon is playing outside with his brother BJ. Michael lives in the desert with his mom and brother. All of a sudden Michael and BJ hear something near by while they are playing. So they decide to go check it out.

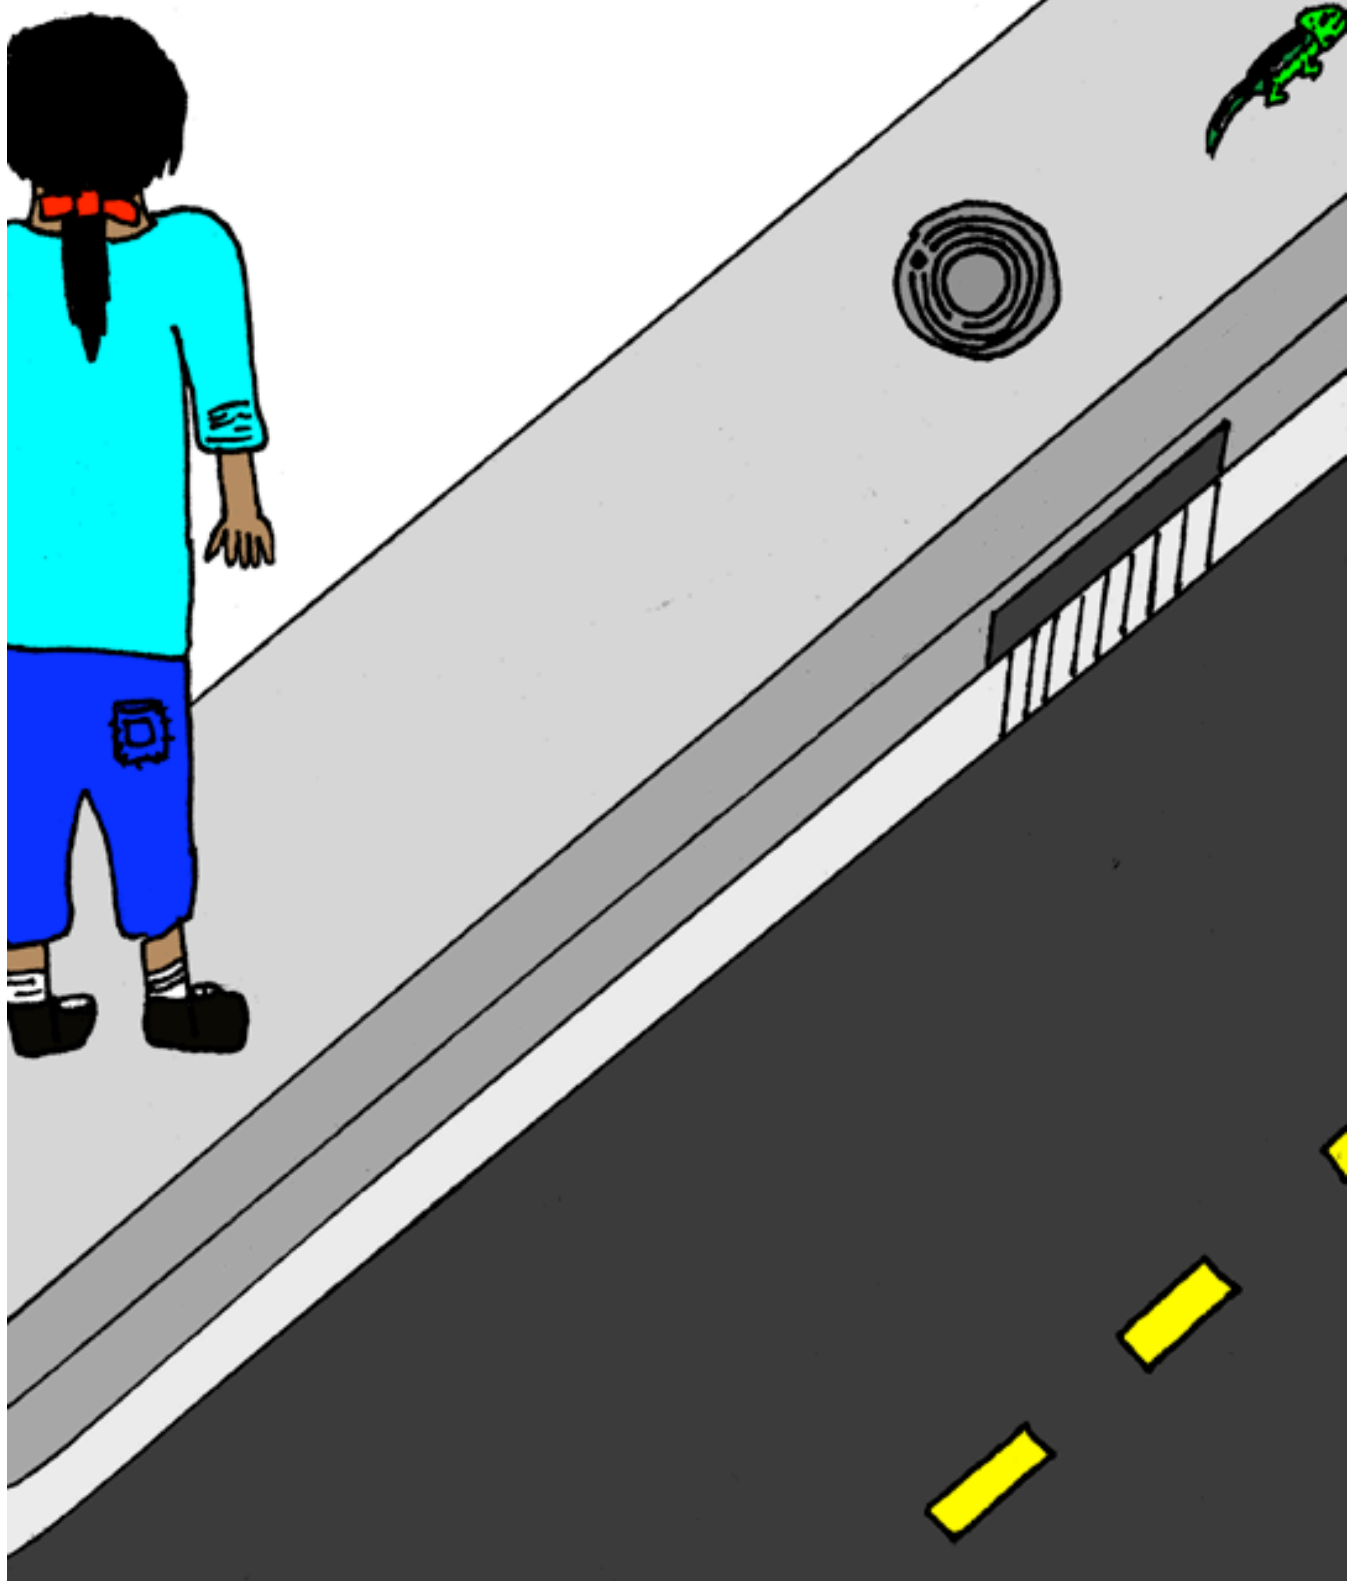

Dude look that human farted. I'm going to follow him because I like to interact with humans.

Don't go. You'll be late for dinner and you know that mom will be very upset with you.

Michael started to fall asleep listening to the music coming from the man's car. But Michael did not notice that he was getting farther and farther away from his home while he was falling asleep.

"Oh my goodness, it's a Pogona vitticeps Rupert." "I think we should hold him till his owner claims him." said Rupert. "That's a great idea!" Jennifer replied, "But where are we going to keep him for now?" I can put him in the extra cage down in the storage.

Rupert asked Michael where he was from. Michael said "In the desert not to far from here." So Rupert told him that he would take him there as long as he told his mom that he was outside playing. So Micheal said sure, and off they went to go back to Michael's house.

Away they went going past streams and rivers, passing cities and towns until they reached the rocky slopes of the mountain. They were half way there and the sun was starting to set. Michael told Rupert to go faster but that is the fastest the yellow truck could.

After thanking Rupert for driving him home. Michael walked into his house, he smelt something his mom was cooking up. It smelt like his favorite meal of all time, grilled beetles, Micheal liked it when there was still red juice oozing out of it. His mom asked Michael where he was and Michael said "Just playing outside with BJ." But Michael and BJ new what happened that night.
