

Zaps Shocking Tale

One night Zap can seem to get any rest. He feels like no matter how much he sleeps he is still getting drained of energy.

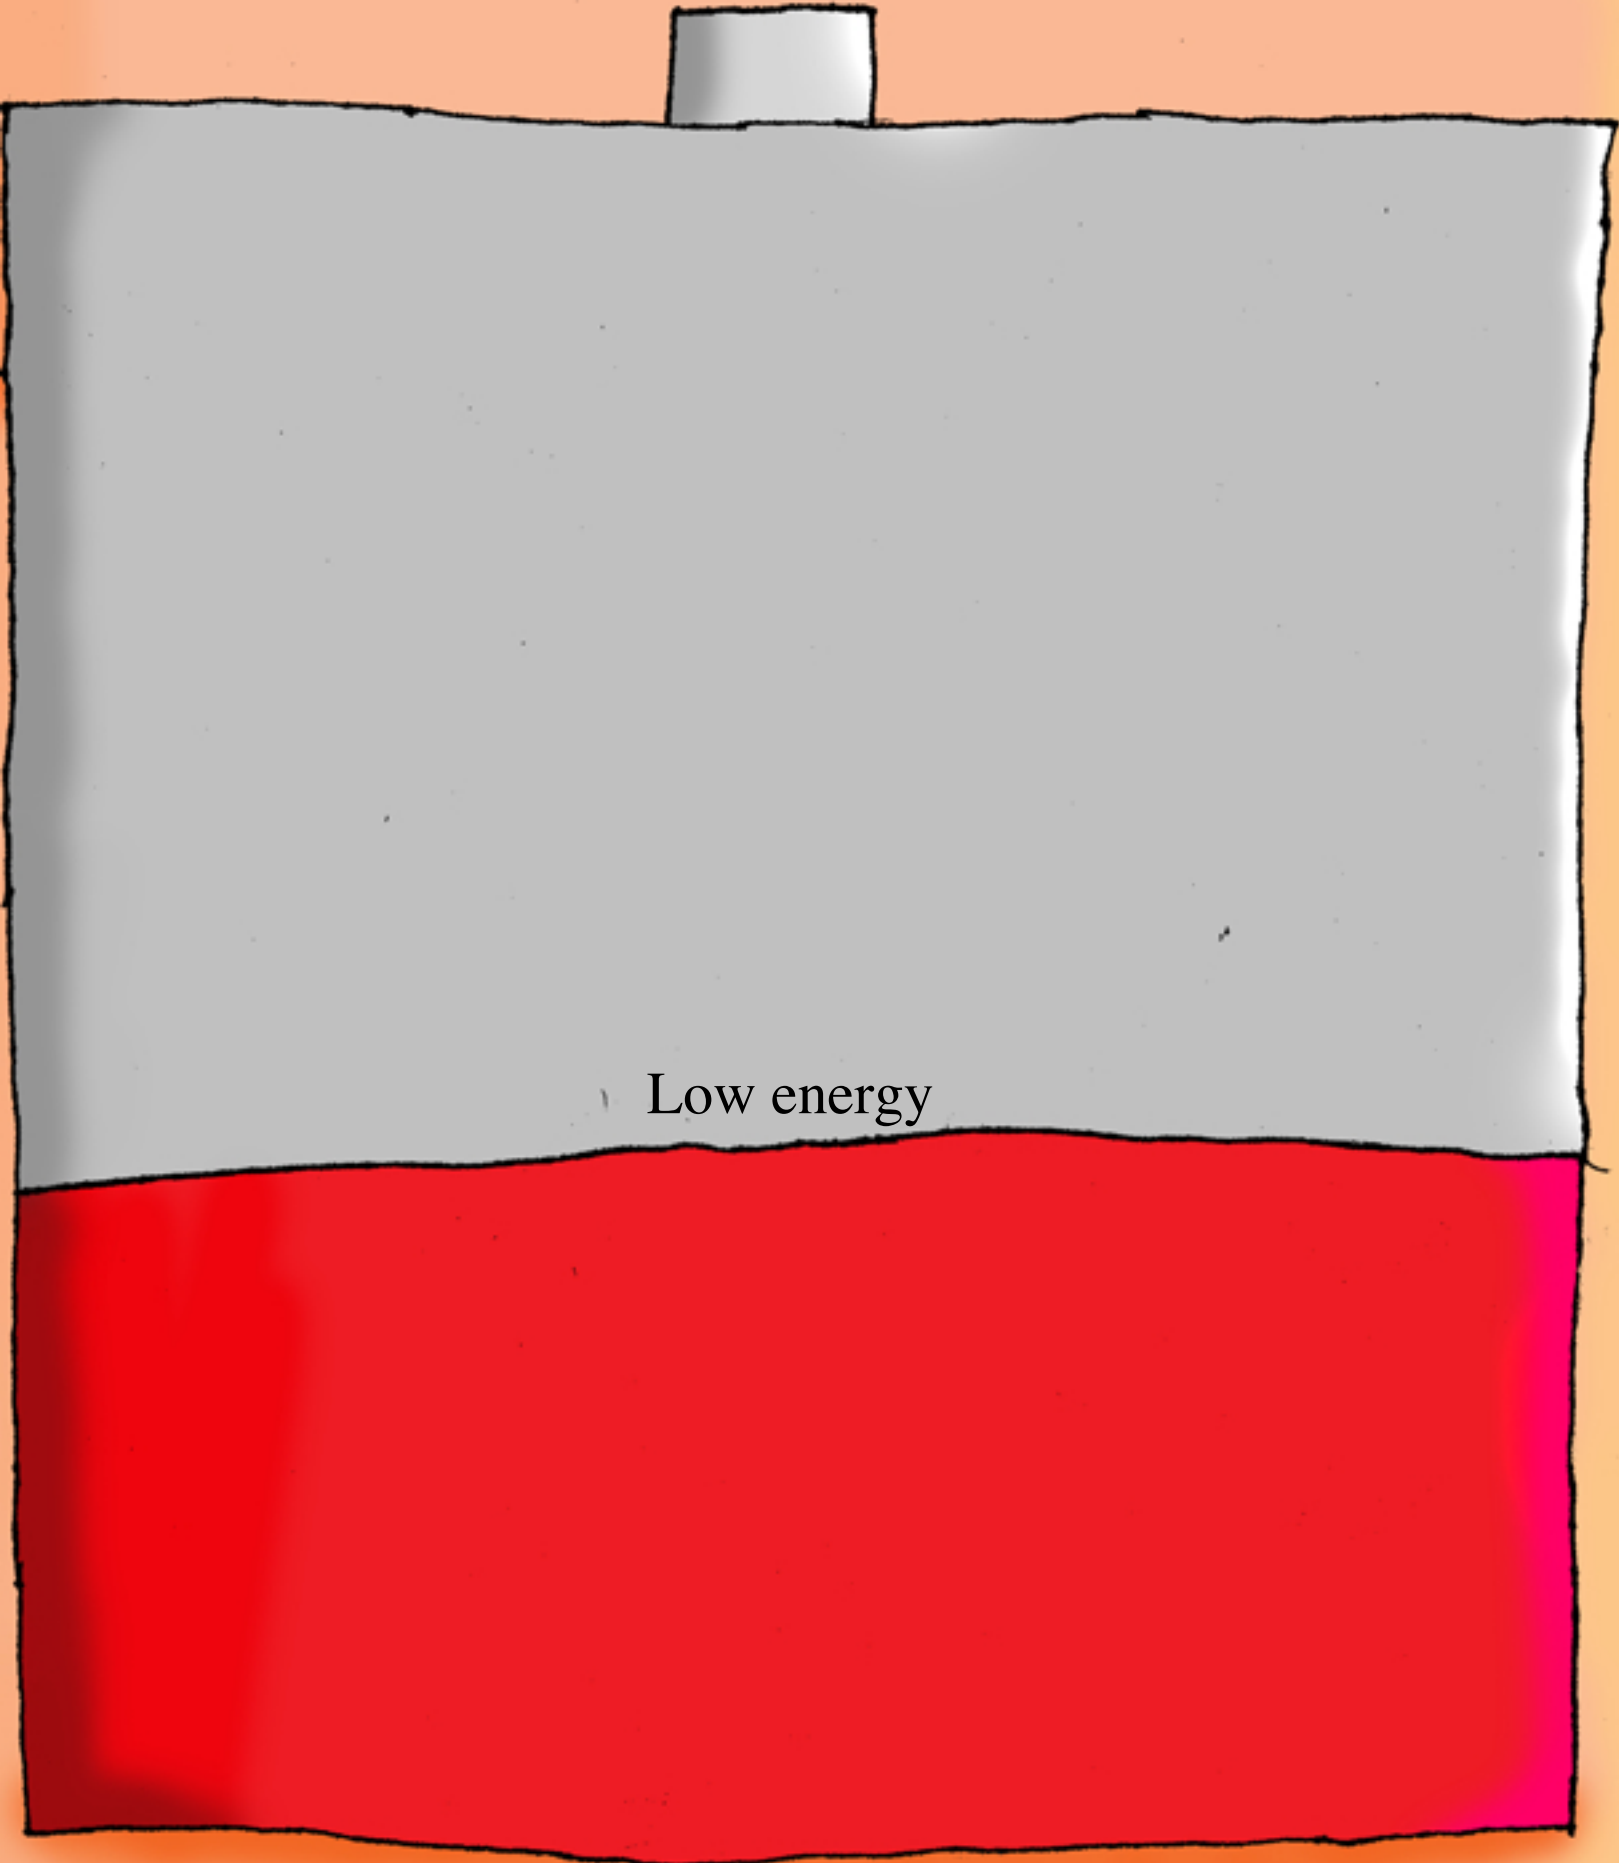

Eventually Zap decides to find out what the problem is. He checks all his plugs and finds that his friends Mr. Computer, and Mr. Toaster are still plugged in and using Zap's energy.

Zap heads over to where his friends' are and says to them, "Why are you still plugged in? It's the middle of the night you are wasting energy and I need to get some rest." His friends' stare back at him and say how are we wasting energy were always plugged in.

Don't you know that even if appliances are off and still plugged in they use electricity. His friends shake their heads and say, "no we didn't know that."

Low energy

Energy Saving 101

Zap feels it is his kuleana to educate his friends about wasting electricity. “Did you know that 75% of electricity used to power electronics is from items turned off. Mr. Computer you can save energy by plugging yourself into a power strip then turning it off.

“Mr. Toaster did you know if you stay plugged in you can start a fire?” At that exact moment, Mr. toaster’s cord sparks and smokes pours out of his toaster holes. Zap burns out from exhaustion his last words were “I TOLD YOU SOOOO!!!!!”