

Marie Alohalani Brown, was raised from Mākaha, O‘ahu but her ‘Ōiwi roots begin in Ho‘okena at the foot of Mauna Loa, Hawai‘i, and she currently lives in Kapu‘euhi in Puna, Hawai‘i. She received a B.A. in Anthropology, and a B. A. and an M. A. in Hawaiian Language, and a PhD. in English from the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa. She is an Assistant Professor of Religion at the University of Hawai‘i, Mānoa, her areas of expertise include Hawaiian religion, belief narratives, historical treaties, and life writing, but also indigenous theories/methodologies for the study of literature, religion, and expressive culture, folklore studies, and translation studies. Her first book, Facing the Spears of Change: The Life and Legacy of John Papa ‘Ī‘Ī (2016, University of Hawai‘i Press) won the Palapala Po‘okela award (2017) for Best Book on Hawaiian Language, Culture, and History.