

Kamani Asing, was born and raised in O'ahu. His 'ohana is rooted in Papakolea, 'Anianiku, 'Ewa, and Nu'uaniu. Asing was heavily immersed in his Catholic background, however he was always drawn to catching mo'o's in his backyard. He always gravitated towards the bushes. Where ever he was, at a restaurant, at home, he would go outside and catch mo'o's. This backyard bush action instilled a deep sense of observation in Asing and love for his Mo'o 'aumakua. His other 'aumakua is the Pueo. Both the Pueo and the mo'o provide Asing with an ability to have a focused and a broad perspective on life at the same time. Asing hopes to instill "Pono" back into his family through this perspectives. He hopes to help people connect with the outside world, especially when there are no other resources for them to deal with life's challenges.
