

Violet Harada, is a professor emeritus at the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa where she coordinated the school library specialization for the Library and Information Science Program for over 20 years. She has authored books and articles on the instructional role of school librarians as 21st-century partners in learning communities. Her latest book is The Many Faces of School Library Leadership (Libraries Unlimited, 2017) that she jointly edited with Sharon Coatney. She continues to share her research and professional experiences at numerous state, national, and international conferences.